New Charges Are Filed Against 'Anti-Party' Group of Stalinists

Entire West Shaken Up by Effects of Big Atomic Test

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (UP) — A dazzling blast equal to the force of 75,000 tons of TNT left westerners today with a faint glimmer of what an atomic conflagration could be like.

The detonation Friday of atomic device Hood hit areas hundreds of miles away with the double-barreled effect of light and sound.

The flash, appearing sun-like over the arid wastes of the Atomic Energy Commission's test site near Las Vegas, created a false dawn in Los Angeles some 300 miles westward. Observers from as far north as the Canadian border and south to the Rio Grande saw the glow.

Twelve hundred miles from the test site, over the Pacific, an airline pilot reported seeing the light.

Sleepers Startled

Hood's sound, traveling in the wake of the flash, came as rumbling jolts. They startled thousands of Los Angeles area residents from their beds 25 minutes after zero hour at 4:40 a.m., p.d.t.

First reports said there was no damage to private property. But 12 hours later the AEC learned shock waves bouncing off a thin layer of air below the stratosphere had shattered windows and dented metal sides of buildings at a mine 35 miles north of the test site.

Seismographs at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena recorded the awesome explosion a minute after it occurred. Its seismographic magnitude was not revealed for security reasons.

Heat estimated at nearly a million degrees Centigrade was an added effect of the detonation. The intense heat set fire to brush on the slopes of a small mountain ridge several miles north of Ground Zero.

Despite the size and power of the device, whose force was 55,000 tons of TNT more than that of the atomic bombs dropped on Japan in World War II, the AEC reported the radio-active fallout was minute. Areas outside the proving grounds were reported "clean" of radio-activity less than six hours after the blast.

Ike Relaxes at Farm; to Play Golf and Bridge

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP) — President Eisenhower relaxed at his farm here today with weekend guests who are experts in two of his favorite pastimes — golf and bridge.

Both games were likely to be on the agenda today, just as they were Friday when Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther and H. B. Alton Jones and their wives arrived for the weekend.

Jones, a Cities Service Oil Co., executive, arrived in time to tee off for a late afternoon round of golf with the President and two Gettysburg neighbors, George E. Allen and Gen. Arthur S. Nevins.

Gruenther, whose forte is bridge arrived after the 18-hole match started. But he caught up with the foursome and walked around the rest of the course with them.

Gruenther, former NATO commander and now president of the American Red Cross, recently returned from an inspection of the Louisiana hurricane area.

He probably will give the President a first-hand report on the situation over the weekend.

Three Saved in Lake Michigan

CHICAGO (UP) — Three young men, their boat swamped by waves 15 miles out in Lake Michigan, were alive today thanks to an alert officer on an ore freighter.

Louis Mucciante, 21, and Otto Wimpffen, 19, both of Chicago, and Herbert Artelt, 19, struggled to stay afloat for five hours Friday before being rescued.

Mucciante and Wimpffen, who kept their friend afloat for an hour when he became unconscious were released after examination. Artelt was kept at American Hospital, suffering from exposure.

The trio had cast off at the Wilmette, Ill., harbor, early Friday morning, outward bound for a weekend trip at Saugatuck, Mich., across the lake.

$75 Stolen in Area Burglary

The burglars entered the building by breaking a side window and then reached in to unlatch a locked door.

They found a key to a locked cabinet, opened it and took the currency. They passed up change in the cabinet and also in a register.

Fairhope-Arnold City To Get Dial Service

A new Bell Telephone central office, operating from a semi-trailer mobile unit, will begin providing dial telephone service for certain customers in the Belle Vernon exchange in October, J. Lawrence Buchanan, district manager, announced today.

The traveling Central office will operate under the name "Gypsy".

When the unit has served its immediate purpose in the Fayette City-Arnold Section, it will move to a new base of operations in Western Pennsylvania and be replaced by a complete dial installation in North Belle Vernon.

This temporary arrangement is intended to ease the telephone traffic load now carried by the Belle Vernon central office and to provide for estimated telephone growth in the area until the entire Belle Vernon office is converted to dial operations, Buchanan said.

Gypsy, who will settle on Perry St. in Fairhope during her stay in this vicinity, will provide dial service for approximately 300 telephone customers in the Fairhope-Arnold City section of the Belle Vernon office, the manager stated.

Telephones on multi-party lines, coin-box telephones and all other Belle Vernon telephones will continue as manual telephones, he added. Only Gypsy telephones will be dial-operated.

Buchanan said the Gypsy central office designation will distinguish dial telephones from manual telephones during the interim period until the entire section converts to dial operation. There will be some duplication of numbers and it will be necessary for manual customers to ask for desired numbers by stating whether it is

Highway Fatalities Fall Short

By UNITED PRESS

Motorists streamed onto national highways Saturday heartened by reports from safety experts that fatalities on the third day of the holiday weekend had fallen short of pre-holiday estimates.

It appeared, in fact, that careful driving might result in a better highway record than a normal period of the same duration at this time of the year. The National Safety Council had forecast 535 deaths by midnight Sunday, and expressed hope the toll would be closer the normal four-day count of 465.

Multiple accidents, however, had already battened the count to 223, a survey by United Press at the 63 hour point, 9 a.m. e.d.t. Saturday, revealed.

Drownings Heavy

Deaths by drowning reached a staggering 130. There was also 1 fireworks death, 7 dead in plane crashes, and miscellaneous deaths numbering 28. The grand total thus far: 389.

Ohio and Pennsylvania led the state-by-state count each with 19 deaths. California had reported 18, Texas 16, Michigan 14, Oklahoma 12, and New York 10.

The worst traffic disaster, a car-truck collision near Copemish, Mich., killed seven persons Friday night and injured three others. All seven dead were occupants of a car with Arkansas license plates, police said.

There was a rash of deaths involving persons in show business.

At Belle Fourche, S. D., a broken ladder rung sent a high stand performer plummeting 82 feet to her death. Mrs. Ethyl C. Hamilton, 55, known as Ethel D'Arcy, was giving her farewell performance before retirement, when the accident happened. At Prescott, Ariz., rodeo performer Odis Sullivan, 27, was trampled to death in a Brahma bull-riding contest.

Traffic Light, But Will Get Heavy Tomorrow

By UNITED PRESS

State police reported traffic on Pennsylvania highways had thinned out at the 'half-time" of the long Independence Day week end today dropping the death toll which had mounted during the early hours.

But at least 19 persons already were dead in traffic accidents and one veteran state trooper said "that could triple if the people don't take care on their way home."

"They're there now, they're having a good time," the trafficwise officer said. "I truly hope they all get home as happy. I hope the patrol radio stays as quiet as it has been tonight."

The traffic toll was boosted Friday by the deaths of two children, who were struck down by vehicles. Earlier, multiple death accidents had swelled the count.

This morning, state police across the Commonwealth reported automobile traffic "light" except in resort areas and in Butler County where a 38-mile detour on Route 68 between Butler and Zelienople shunted traffic onto heavily-traveled, north-south artery Route 19.

"It's not jammed, but it sure is steady," a state trooper reported.

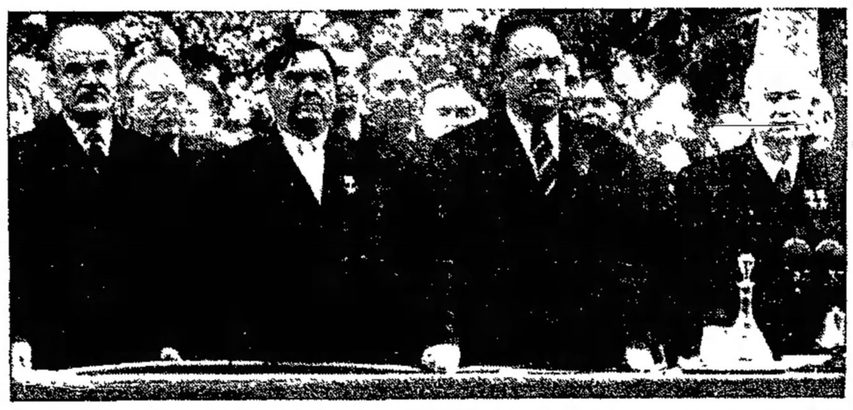
Will These Old Red 'Soldiers' Die or Just Fade Away?



Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev (right) is shown with three ouster victims during Lenin birthday celebration in April. From left: V. M. Molotov, Georgi M. Malenkov, Lazar Kaganovich.

OBSERVERS SEE what may be a new day dawning in relations with the Soviet in the Moscow shakeup which finds veteran Stalinists V. M. Molotov, Georgi Malenkov, Lazar Kaganovich and Dmitri Shepilov kicked off the 11-man presidium, ruling Communist body. The shakeup shows party boss Nikita Khrushchev is firmly in the saddle. The Soviet press accused the ousted leaders of plotting secretly to "seize power," an accusation which has ended many another Russian leader's career with an obituary. Now the question is, will they be put on trial to be disgraced publicly, or just be sent to pasture? The latter could be dangerous. (International)

Also booted was Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov (left). Demoted were two economist members of the 11-man presidium, Mikhail Pervukhin (middle) and Maxim Saburov.

Czechoslovakian Stalinists Expected to Be Purged Next

(United Press staff correspondent Russell Jones covered the uprisings in Poland and Hungary last year. He was the only American reporter in Budapest at the height of the revolt. He is currently on assignment to Eastern Europe. In the following dispatch from Vienna, major Western listening post to Iron Curtain happenings, he reports the Soviet political upheaval may be followed by the ouster of Stalinists from Communist Czechoslovakia.)

By RUSSELL JONES

VIENNA (UP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev may order a major purge of the Czechoslovakia Communist Party and government when the Soviet Communist Party boss visits Prague next week.

Khrushchev and Premier Nikolai Bulganin are scheduled to leave Russia for Prague Monday.

Observers here believe Khrushchev, fresh from his victory over "dogmatists" in the Kremlin, will insist Czechoslovakia follow suit in "cleaning house."

Czechoslovakia is one of the last of the major satellite nations run by old-line Stalinists. Its rulers have shown no signs of changing their ways since the death of Josef Stalin and the repudiation of the "cult of the individual."

Same Crowd In Power

The only gesture made by the Prague regime toward following the "Khrushchev line" was to demote Alexei Cepicka from the post of defense minister to head the patent office and to oust Ladislav Stoll as minister of culture. But both men remain as members of the party in good standing.

From President Antonin Zapotocky and Prime Minister Vilem Siroky on down through the ranks of both party and government,

British Frogman Buried Without Military Honors

PORTSMOUTH, England (UP)—The body of a man identified as British frogman Lionel (Buster) Crabb was buried Friday without military honors or even an official Royal Navy representative on hand.

Crabb, a former British naval officer, vanished in the murky waters of Portsmouth Harbor early in 1956 while three Soviet warships were anchored there. A headless and handless body, encased in a rubber frogman suit, was recovered recently and identified as that of Crabb.

In the absence of confirmed facts regarding his mission, —Crabb's activities have been the subject of considerable speculation. British newspapers said he might have been "doing a job" for the United States, or some other foreign power.

Following a formal Russian protest, the British government denied Crabb was carrying out any cloak-and-dagger operation on its behalf.

The body was buried without the monocle and swordcane which were as much Crabb's trademark on land as his rubber suit, mask and flippers were under water.

Conti intends taking over the business by July 1. No purchase price has been announced.

Trio Faces Expulsion, Red Trial

MOSCOW (UP)—New charges were leveled today against the deposed Stalinist "anti-party" group and it appeared certain they faced final expulsion from the party, if not trial on capital charges.

The government newspaper Izvestia today charged that the group, "especially Georgi Malenkov," had sabotaged Soviet farm programs for years.

The new denunciations, added to the list of earlier accusations, apparently indicated further punishment was in store for Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich.

(Radio Moscow in an English language broadcast heard in London denied reports Malenkov, Molotov and Kaganovich had been arrested. It said all three attended a Communist Party meeting in Moscow Friday where they were denounced for their "anti-party" activity.)

Fate Unknown

The public outcry against the discredited trio was mounting in intensity and ferocity across the length and breadth of the Soviet Union. The campaign already has written an ignominious end to the careers of the former lieutenants of the late Josef Stalin.

But there was no information available here on the whereabouts of the three former members of the Soviet hierarchy or any official indication of their ultimate fate.

Molotov, Kaganovich and Malenkov already have been accused of intrigue and conspiracy against the party leadership of Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Today Izvestia said in an editorial that the three, particularly Malenkov, were "directly responsible for many years of confusion in the field of agricultural production."

The organ of the Ministry of Culture, Soviet Culture, singled out Molotov for failure to promote cultural progress, an assignment he received after relinqishing the Foreign Ministry in 1956.

"Ignorance" is Charged

It also accused Molotov of not "working effectively" in his post as minister of state control. Molotov, it asserted, spent most of his time "composing letters of complaints."

Izvestia reported a mass meeting in Tallinn, capital of Estonia, at which a speaker denounced Kaganovich for "ruthless conceit and arrogance."

Malenkov was charged with "ignorance that retarded the development of electrical power stations in Estonia." Malenkov, who had followed Stalin as premier of the Soviet Union, was minister of electric power until ousted in the Khrushchev-directed reshuffle.

From Alma Ata, capital of the Kazakh Republic and focal point of Khrushchev's virgin land development project, it was reported a meeting accused the "Molotov trio" of sabotaging government plans in the region.

Khrushchev's "personal intervention" was often required to push forward development schemes, it was said.

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda said a "wave of popular wrath against the anti-party group of Molotov, Malenkov and Kaganovich has been sweeping the U.S.S.R."

The shakeup, directed by Communist Party Secretary Nikita S.

Soviet Shake-up Is Studied by U. N. Committee

LONDON (UP) — Members of the U.N. disarmament committee studied the Moscow shake-up in private today in an effort to foresee what effect it will have on the current arms cuts talks here.

U.S. delegate Harold Stassen completed presentation of the United States views on nuclear disarmament Friday, and the five-nation group adjourned until Monday.

Informed sources said the U.S. plan, which would open all East-West territory from the Atlantic Ocean to the Siberian frontier for aerial photography, will test the sincerity of Russia's announced determination to ease world tension.

They said Stassen told Russian delegate Valorian Zorin the United States would be willing to contribute 53 units of fissionable materials into international stockpiles for peaceful use to every 47 units contributed by the Russians.

Zorin said only that he would take the American proposals under study, but he was reported to have re-emphasized that Russian efforts toward disarmament would continue in the face of the changes in Soviet leadership.

CD Test Alerts Will Be Sounded Next Week

A series of Civil Defense warning signals will be sounded in the Monessen district next week.

Test alerts will be sounded throughout the state Monday and Tuesday to give the public a chance to learn the signals.

W. Roy McShaffrey, local CD director, said the public will not be required to take shelter on Monday or Tuesday. But citizens will be required to take cover during the nationwide test on Friday.

McShaffrey says the following test signals will be sounded:

At 7:15 each evening, the long steady "alert" signal will be sounded on local sirens, horns and whistles.

This will be a steady non-fluctuating sound and will last three to five minutes. Official meaning of the signal is to listen for emergency information on radio, television or public address systems.

Fifteen minutes later, at 7:30 p. m., will sound the three-minute, pulsating "take cover" signal — a warbling siren tone or short blasts on horns or whitles.

Official meaning of the signal is to "take cover immediately," McShaffrey stated.

The public will be expected only to "get to know" these signals on Monday and Tuesday. But everyone will take part in the alert to be sounded at an unannounced time Friday.

In Friday's phase, the CD and police forces will be expected to bring highway traffic to a halt and direct people on the streets to seek cover indoors.

LOOKING FOR GOD

Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church — that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a church you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this Sunday—make it a regular practice.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs its moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Judges Get Liberal Retirement System

Bill Is Signed by Leader

HARRISBURG (UP)—Legislation setting up a liberal retirement system for Pennsylvania's judges has been signed by Gov. George M. Leader.

The new law would allow judges to retire and receive up to 80 per cent of their annual salaries. The measure sets up the ground work for jurists not in the state employes retirement system to make back payment to qualify.

The bill was designed to encourage the older judges to retire, while acting as an inducement for lawyers to accept judgeships.

Gov. Leader said:

"This act will induce able lawyers to accept judgeships without the fear of future financial uncertainties and as a result thereof the interests of justice will be better served."

A similar bill passed by the 1955 Legislature was vetoed by Leader because it did not contain the provision for back contributions by the judges."

The governor also signed measures late Friday which:

—Authorize the Department of Forests and Waters to enter into agreements for removal of offshore oil and gas from beneath Lake Erie. The bill was designed to encourage exploration of the area by oil and gas companies.

—Repeal existing legislation calling for construction of a flood control dam on the Delaware River near Wallpack Bend. The measure authorizes the construction of a series of dams and reservoirs across the river by Pennsylvania, sharing the costs with the federal government and New Jersey. The bill, however, is subject to approval by the New Jersey Assembly.

—Provide for compensation to informers on a graduated percentage basis for money recovered on their information of misappropriation or fraud of Commonwealth funds. The law would not apply to state employes or officials until three years after their term of office.

—Allow Senate President Pro Tempore, Senate and House minority leaders and the House Speaker to name proxy votes for themselves on the General State Authority. The bill specifies the proxies must be from the same branch of the Legislator as their selector.

—Authorize construction of at least one roadside rest in each of Pennsylvania's 67 counties along state highways. The rests would be in addition to the ones now in use.

—Authorize the public sale of 133 acres of state land formerly used by Danville State Hospital in Mahoning Twp., Montour County, and the sale of a small lot and building in Danville also formerly used by the hospital.

—Make it a misdemeanor for a husband to leave his wife or children without reasonable cause or to neglect their support. The new law also provides that the court could order the husband to pay support.

—Exempt young mens' and womens' Hebrew associations and blind war veterans from payment of vehicle registration fees. Present legislation exempts scout groups, churches, veterans organizations and paralyzed veterans from such fees.

—Provide regulations governing the preparation and sale of packaged soft drinks and fruit juices. The new law spells out controls for licensing, labeling, sanitation and control of ingredients, along with establishing penalties for violators.

Truman Dedicates Library of Offical Papers and Mementos

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UP) — Former President Truman climaxes years of planning to preserve his official papers in the dedication of the Truman Library today.

The former President, the center of as much attention as he has had since leaving the White House will present the 21-million dollar library and contents to the government in ceremonies this afternoon.

Chief Justice Earl Warren will be the main speaker at the dedication ceremonies. He headed the list of some 2,000 out-of-town guests present for the library dedication.

The day's festivities begin with a parade and a cornerstone laying ceremony.

Prominent persons on hand included former President Hoover, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, former Truman cabinet members, congressional leaders from both parties and educational and cultural leaders from throughout the nation.

Built From Donations

The modernistic library, built from public donations totaling more than the $1,750,000 cost, houses Truman's official papers and mementos of his office. It was expected to become a center of study for students and historians of the Truman period — the end of World War II, the birth of the United Nations, and the Korean War.

Truman insisted that all records — whether reflecting criticism or credit—be included. His papers alone number three and one-half million.

The library first was opened to the public briefly Friday as Truman, beaming and obviously delighted, took 200 persons on tour, played a piano solo, and received gifts for the library ranging from a set of master keys to an organ.

The former President also exhibited a sun dial in what will be the rose garden of the library, and gave a brief dissertation on how to tell time.

It took the country 40 years to set up time zones, he said, then "some crazy goof got this idea about Daylight Saving Time but I'm not going to pay attention. I'm going by this sun dial."

One - Story Structure

The library is of Indiana limestone facing, and is in a crescent or "J" shape on the crest of a knoll. It is a one-story building with a full basement containing 70,000 square feet of floor space.

Public areas include an auditorium seating 250 persons, two museums areas, a replica of the President's office in the west wing of the White House, and library space. Truman gave his personal collection of 10,000 books to the library, but it was expected that most of the study there would be of the presidential papers by university students and historians.

"The president's job," said Truman, "is the most powerful in the history of the world. People should understand it better. I hope youngsters will come here and study and become better citizens."

Stalinists

however, the same old crowd is still in power.

These are the men, who under the late President Klement Gottwald, overthrew the democratic government of Eduard Benes, and in 1952 hanged Rudolf Slansky and 10 other "nationalist Communists."

Throughout their careers, they have been unswerving followers of the tough line laid down by Stalin.

However, observers said any reshuffle of the Czech Communist Party would be difficult because the elimination of Slansky and his "independent" Communist faction left the party with no alternatives to the Stalinists.

The observers believe the likely result of the Khrushchev-Bulganin visit will be a wave of self-criticisms for "mistakes of the past" and "failure to learn the lessons of the (Soviet) 20th Party congress" followed by "voluntary resignations."

But, because there is so little to choose between the present Czech leaders, the observers are unwilling to speculate on who will fall and who will remain.

The device was the largest ever fired in the United States. Its runner-up, a device detonated in 1953, had a force of 60,000 tons of TNT.

Airman Just Doesn't Like 'Sidewall' Cut

TOKYO (UP) — Airman 3-c Don Wheeler of Cortez, Colo., who disapproves of "white sidewall" haircuts, today faced a possible maximum sentence of dishonorable discharge for failing to get one.

Wheeler, 20-year-old member of the Air Force honor guard at the former U.S. Far East Command Headquarters here, is being tried by court martial for refusing to have his head shaved on three sides, leaving only a crewcut fringe on top.

The U.S. Air Force says a "white sidewall" cut gives the men a distinguished "clean cut" look. But Wheeler says it means going to the barber shop every three days and "that's too much to ask of a man."

Observed a 'Smelly' Holiday

NEW YORK (UP)—Francisco Lopez had $1,550 he didn't quite know what to do with when he closed his Spanish - American grocery at the end of the day July 4, so he put it in the garbage can.

It wasn't that Francisco had a frivolous attitude toward money.

But he told himself, "I don't want to carry this much money with me over the holiday, and who would ever think of looking for it in the garbage?"

Nary a thief came around to Francisco's store that night, but the next day, the garbage collector did.

Lopez got on the phone. He called the private carting concern that had picked up the garbage, but it was a holiday, and he had no luck.

Then he called the police, who found that the concern unloads its garbage on scows at Newtown Creek to be taken out to sea to be dumped.

Francisco was sped to the scows in a police car. He, a detective, the owner of the carting company, and eight volunteers then started picking through three tons of refuse.

In the next two hours, the searchers found plenty of beer cans, watermelon rinds, squeezed lemons, eggshells, rotten cabbage, and other well-matured unedibles. But no $1,550.

Finally, a searcher dug up the paper bag in which Lopez had placed the money. In it was $100 in change, but the bag was broken. Then someone else found $550 in checks. Then Lopez' wallet, with $900 in it.

Francisco just stood there in the garbage heap, a happy, smelly and terribly shaken man.

Turnpike Trial Recessed to Give Everyone Rest

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike conspiracy trial was recessed for the weekend today as testimony in the five week old trial reached the one million word mark.

Dauphin County Court Judge Homer L. Kreider halted the case late Friday while Harry L. Luke, chief engineer for Manu-Mine Research and Development Co., Reading, was on the stand for the defense.

Kreider said: "The court stenographers could use a rest, along with the jurors, all counsel and, incidentally, the trial judge."

Luke will take the stand again Monday to explain massive technical maps, charts and reports presented by the defense "to show that Manu-Mine did a lot more work than it's being credited for."

The state contends that Manu-Mine charged exorbitant rates to drill access holes to mine voids along the turnpike's Northeastern Extension. The prosecution alleges that 95 per cent of the firm's work was worthless and was part of a multi-million dollar plot to swindle the Turnpike Commission.

Scouts in Week of Camping

The second week of Camp Conestoga, the Boy Scout Camp, is winding up with 254 scouts from 18 troops and posts participating in the activities program directed by W. L. Lewis, of Connellsville.

Parents and friends are invited to attend any of the Wednesday night campfires where special entertainment is provided by the campers.

During the past week Dr. W. M. Heater, of Monessen, visited the camp and conducted the regular physical re-check.

On Thursday evening William Simonson of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. at Forest Hills met with the campers and gave a "big idea" talk at the camp fellowship program.

Troop 4 Mt. Pleasant and Troop 1 Shawtown won the swimming meet while Troop 1 Uniontown won the field meet. The weekly inspection award was won by Troop 2 Uniontown.

The scouts qualified for a wide range of merit badges during the past week. A total of 70 merit badges was earned.

Troops now in camp include: Troop 2 Masontown; Troop 1 Dunbr; Troop 8 Greensburg; Post 8 Greensburg; Troop 5 Scottdale; Troop 1 Palmer,; Troop 1 Ralph; Troop 14 Greensburg, Post 14, Greensburg; Troop 4 Everson; Troop 3 Masontown; Troop 1 Penn Craft; Troop 1 Republic; Troop 12 Greensburg; Troop 1 Greensburg; Troop 12 Uniontown, Troop 4 Uniontown, and Troop 1 Monarch.

Khrushchev, has received the full backing of Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Unofficial public accusations against the trio already have gone far beyond the official attacks on them.

The strongest official blast came from the armed forces newspaper Red Star which accused the Molotov group of "conspiring" to "remove the elected leaders" of the Communist Party. This is in itself went beyond the previous accusations of "dogmatism" and "factionalism."

Public speakers at thousands of mass rallies throughout Russia went even further. They denounced the trio for "vanity," "lust for power" and of "dirty sabotage."

Trio Out Of Sight

There has been no official word on the whereabouts of Molotov, Malenkov or Kaganovich. They have not appeared in public since June 18 — 10 days before the party Central Committee meeting that resulted in their ouster.

The continuing shakeup in government and party Friday saw two more deputy premiers dropped from cabinet posts. They were Mikhail G. Pervukhin and Maxim Saburov who lost their posts as first deputy premiers.

Pervukhin presumably remained as minister of medium machine building. Saburov was out altogether.

Leader's Appraisal Of the Assembly

GOVERNOR Leader's latest bill of indictment against the record of the Republican-controlled General Assembly sounded more like a political treatise than an appraisal by a responsible executive. The Assembly record just is not as bad as the Governor makes it appear.

The differences between Mr. Leader and the Republicans boil down to their conflicting ideas as to the course the state government of Pennsylvania should pursue during the new biennium.

Governor Leader favored an expansion of nearly all the present programs and the addition of some new ones. This would have required still further increases in expenditures and some new forms of tax revenue.

For their part, the Republicans took the position that the people wanted the legislature to "hold the line" on spending and taxes. That was the platform on which they won control of the Assembly.

And the Republicans held the line. Although they approved a budget calling for record-high expenses, they balanced it without new taxes.

* * *

IT IS on this basis that Mr. Leader calls the session the "worst" in Pennsylvania history.

This is not a fair appraisal unless one is willing to regard George Leader as the wisest man in Harrisburg, and not many people so regard him. There was just no way for the legislature to do everything the Governor wanted it to do and still carry out the Republican pledges to the voters.

We doubt that this proves that Republicans are less noble and generous and charitable than Democrats, which is what Mr. Leader apparently would have us think. Rather, the results of the session reflect a fundamental disagreement on governmental policy, a disagreement which undoubtedly will—and should—be submitted to the voters again.

* * *

WITH ONE aspect of Governor Leader's analysis we are in hearty accord. And that is his concern over the influence of lobbyists.

The Governor is right when he says the state capital is overrun with lobbyists and that some of them are "more powerful in the legislature than any professed politician or officeholder."

Mr. Leader in his television speech made special reference to public utility lobbyists. But he could have mentioned some other kinds — railroad, truck, labor union, school teacher, etc. And some key members of the Governor's own official family spent a good deal of their time in activities which could be called lobbying.

Some lobbying is inevitable and some is actually beneficial. The newspapers, for instance, did some effective lobbying for the "right to know" bills, and these are more in the public interest than in the interest of newspapers as an industry.

But far too much legislation is written in Harrisburg under lobby pressure and influence. And we hope the time is coming when the Assembly itself will take steps to curtail it.

The Exterminators

FOR A LONG time civilized people all over the world have thought it might be a good idea if the rulers of the Soviet Union could be laid end to end. Now the latest Kremlin "purge" suggests that if we wait long enough, that might well happen.

The names do not matter particularly. The order in which these evil creatures are removed from power — often from life itself — is of only passing consequence. Yesterday it was Beria; today it is Molotov and Malenkov; tomorrow it will be Khrushchev and Bulganin. We know that so long as the system of which they are a part continues to function, when one goes down, there will be another to take his place.

But the "purges" have a definite utility for the free world. They serve as a graphic reminder that the Soviet Union, for all its admitted power, is a very brittle thing. In the final analysis, it is held together by treachery, and treachery has never yet been a durable bond for a social or political order.

This "purge" is especially timely. It comes when we are involved in direct negotiations with the Kremlin looking toward some sort of agreement on disarmament.

The question has already been raised in this country as to how much confidence we are entitled to place in any agreement with the Soviet Union about anything. And it is a good question, too.

Khrushchev seems to have emerged as the winner of the latest 'round in the continuing power struggle. So our agreement, if any, will probably be with Khrushchev.

But we had better keep in mind that Khrushchev's power — as well as his life — hangs by a thin thread. His next "purge" could be his own.

We are also still entitled to think that eventually, someday the people of Russia will find a better way to be governed — or, better still, to govern themselves.

National Affairs—

U. S. Needs Two-party System

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—What this country needs more than a good five-cent cigar is a respectable two-party political system.

Mr. Wilson

A respectable two-party political system would be one in which the leaders and the rank-and-file of each party were deeply committed to a general program for the public welfare and in which the two general programs substantially differed.

The Republican Party does not meet that standard today. Else, it would not have been necessary, recently, for President Eisenhower to remind congressional Republicans that in opposing some of his basic legislative program they also were opposing the party platform on which most of them last year sought office.

Democrats Fall Short Too

The Democratic Party doesn't meet it, either. To demonstrate that to yourself, just try to define a Democrat in terms which would cover, for example, such notable leaders of that party as Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Sen. Harry F. Byrd (Va.) and Sen. Wayne Morse (Ore.). It can't be done.

Enactment of civil rights legislation on which the Senate begins a filibustering debate Monday would mangle the southern way of life. It also would move the United States closer to a real two-party system, respectable or not.

This would be accomplished by the extension and enforcement of the right to vote among those elements of southern society which do not now, for one reason or another, exercise that right.

The Bureau of the Census calculated for the 1952 presidential election the percentage of persons of voting age who actually voted. Southern states lagged.

It is reasonable to believe that Negroes comprise the bulk of southern non-voters. It is likely that enactment of civil rights legislation would bring them to the polls.

At that point, southerners would be likely to take a hard look at their one-party system in which a Democratic nomination for state or federal office is about the same as election to it. Negro voters in the South might, of course, join with the Republican Party.

Could Also Become Democrats

More likely, they would be attracted by the more radical politics of northern Democrats and tend, therefore, to move into the Democratic Party in the South. That would bench the old line Democratic conservatives in several southern states and wreck the congressional coalition of conservative Republicans and southern Democrats.

Conservative southern voters would be looking then for another place to mark their ballots and they probably would wind up in the Republican Party or in a party of their own allied with the Republicans. That would be a considerable move toward a respectable two-party system in which, ultimately, Americans must distribute themselves for a showdown contest for control of the destiny of the United States.

'Audrey' and the Red Cross

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

LAKE CHARLES, La. — For some days yet you will be reading how the concerted and humane instruments of government, from the President in Washington to the stout-hearted Sheriff of Cameron Parish in his harried staff headquarters in the courthouse, are together rescuing, caring for, comforting and sustaining the stricken and homeless families in the wake of Hurricane Audrey's death-strewn path.

Mr. Drummond

But when the headlines of tragedy and sadness of pain and destitution, diminishes the biggest, most inspiring but little headlined story will just begin.

This is the story of man's humanity to man, America's humanity to destitute fellow-Americans.

This is the story of restoration and recovery in which the generosity of a free people, preferring to act — and to act handsomely — outside the confines of government, will focus upon the plight of sufferers whose independence has been temporarily struck from their hands by disaster.

Job of Red Cross

This is the almost exclusive job of the privately financed, privately managed American Red Cross, and what a magnificent and exhilerating job it is mobilizing to do.

This is not the job of the benevolent, paternalistic state. This is the job done by a benevolent, humane people and the Red Cross is the arm and trustee of the instinct and the determination of a whole people to be its brother's keeper.

Within a few hours after Hurricane Audrey shot and shifted its deadly course, with little warning, across the below-sea-level lands of southwestern Louisiana, 80 staff workers of the Red Cross were converging on Lake Charles and many times that number of local volunteers were being organized to provide food, clothing, shelter and medical attention for the thousands who would be wounded and homeless.

Now this immediate task is mostly done; the greater chore is at hand.

Will Rebuild

That quiet, private, often unpublicized chore will soon flower and flourish. In consequence the now desolate and almost lifeless community of Cameron Parish, where Audrey did her worst, will in the coming months begin to flower and flourish.

This is the way it will be done:

Right now specialists of the Red Cross are registering and interviewing about 2,000 disaster victims whose homes have been wrecked or destroyed and whose means of livelihood have been damaged or lost whether they be fishermen without boats or nets, trappers without traps, small shopkeepers without shops or merchandise, self-employed oil-drillers without equipment, or others.

They will establish and verify in every individual case the need, in relation of loss to resources. That need will be measured by the gap between the need and what the individual can do to restore his home and his means of livelihood without undue hardship.

Will Meet Needs

They will then supply that need promptly, privately and openheartedly, not as an act of charity to a recipient of charity but as an act of generosity made possible by a generous public which wants to preserve and nourish the independence of fellow Americans who have momentarily lost their independence through no fault of their own.

This process of restoration — of living and of livelihood — is beginning and it will not end until it is finished.

It will include food, clothing and maintenance and the rebuilding or repair of owner-occupied homes, small businesses and essential farm buildings. It will include furniture and other household necessities, medical and nursing care, hospitalization, even burial. It will include occupational supplies, fixtures, inventories and equipment.

All of this, measured, as I say, by the gap between individdal resources and individual need, will be the outright gift of the American people to the once worried and harried sufferers from Hurricane Audrey — as the Red Cross has done in 6,000 other disaster relief operations during its 75 years of existence.

This is how a voluntary society exhibits its humanity to man.

If you have given to the Red Cross in 1957, this is what you are doing.

Historical Novel And Mystery Story

By UNITED PRESS

Fire, Burn!, by John Dickson Carr: (Harper): A story about a woman killed by a bullet that couldn't logically have been fired in the presence of three witnesses, one of whomcouldn't possibly have been there.

As is Carr's recent custom, his new book is a historical novel as well as a detective story. The period he has chosen is one relatively untouched by fiction — the pre-Victorian era when London's uniformed police force was in its infancy and the idea of plain-clothes detectives was downright shocking.

The mystery is rather less mystifying than the plots of some of his semi-classic locked-room stories, but the hairbreadth pace of the accompanying historical adventure and romance more than makes up for any lack of Sherlockery. An engrossing story from cover to cover

Our Presidents and Their Official Papers

By HARRY R. PORE Jr.

Out in Independence, Mo., today they are dedicating the Harry Truman Library and turning it over to the federal government as a repository for the former President's official papers.

This fulfills a dream of Mr. Truman, who has spent much of his time since leaving the White House in raising the million dollars or so which the library has cost.

Mr. Truman has been a student of American history. And perhaps more than most of our Presidents, he has been continually conscious of his own place in history. He has said repeatedly that his chief reason for promoting the Truman Library has been to insure that the records necessary for later historical appraisal of his administration are available in some convenient place.

This was the reason which President Franklin D. Roosevelt gave, too, for establishing the memorial to himself at Hyde Park.

Anyone, I think, can follow this reasoning. And the scholars of the future undoubtedly will bless Mr. Truman and Mr. Roosevelt for their thoughtfulness. Research under the conditions prevailing in these handsomely equipped buildings is going to be very much simpler than the tedious grubbing which has been necessary in illuminating some of the corners of American history.

Notwithstanding this, however, I haven't quite been able to satisfy myself that the concern which Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman displayed during their lifetimes about this matter has not come pretty close to immodesty.

Lincoln Cited

I keep thinking about Abraham Lincoln, and it is impossible to imagine him going about the country making speeches to raise funds to establish a library to house his papers and to serve as a memorial to himself. I can even think that Mr. Lincoln might have found such an idea revolting.

Lincoln said at Gettysburg, you recall: "The world will little note nor long remember what we say here. . ." And all we know of his character suggests that he meant the statement literally. While Lincoln certainly sensed the fatefulness of the events which beat around him, he tended always to minimize his personal role in these events.

We could wish, of course, that both Mr. Lincoln and some of his friends and heirs had been more careful of the records of his life and the period of his service. Although the Lincoln literature is voluminous now to the point of being discouraging, the research behind much of it has been a scholar's nightmare.

What Is Missing?

But when we come right down to it, what is now missing of the Lincoln story that is really essential? Very little, I'm inclined to think.

Furthermore, had Mr. Lincoln gone to the trouble of asking his friends and admirers to construct a building in Springfield by which he could be remembered, this very act would have clashed with the humility and self-effacement which now are among the most precious facets of the Lincoln personality.

This is not to say that our Presidents should be as careless as most of them, including Lincoln, have been about their papers. At the very least they should all make provision for the important ones to be deposited in due course in the Library of Congress.

And as far as they can they ought to prevent such papers from being peddled as souvenirs on the open market as some of Mr. Roosevelt's have been by members of his immediate family.

But I'm not sure that a President who is properly humble will go much beyond this. Those who do, it seems to me, run the risk of having historians evaluate, their personalities at a somewhat lower level than the subjects would prefer. Human history is full of examples of men who have written their own epitaphs and tried to dictate their own obituaries. But such efforts have seldom been successful. Often, in fact, they have appeared quite foolish.

Land Below Stream Bank Different World

By JOHN H. DAY

The hill country stream winds along through the loamy intervales, free from the foul pollution which blights neighboring waterways. Running clear and sweet from spring-fed sources to its juncture with the mighty river, it is a thing of shimmering, sparkling beauty. Its limpid trace is a sort of binding thread for the ever-changing landscape. Seen from a passing car, it is a pretty stream, seductively mystical in its wide, tree-shaded eddies. But only the fisherman, who gets down into that land of magic below the banks, knows it aright.

It is a different world, this land below the stream bank, with different inhabitants, a different quality of landscape, a sense of strangeness perpetually alluring, and a peaceful mood of languid solitude. The angler is oddly shut in on the stream, not only by high banks and bounding trees, but also by his angle of vision, which is lowered many feet from the usual. He gains thus an intimacy with his immediate surroundings which is elsewhere impossible.

At the end of an afternoon's fishing, when he stows his tackle and climbs the bank, the sense of transitition is sometimes almost startling. Six steps up from waterway to footway and he is in another world. He smells different odors, sees different flowers, and his range of vision expands to the accustomed horizon. So it is that the land below the stream bank retains its charm of a shy, secluded personality that must be sought out, and one which is therefore comparatively unknown.

Life Is Different

The bird and animal life of this enchanted waterway is different. Kingfishers and turtles dominate the activity, with now and again a magnificent osprey or great blue heron for added surprising interest. The kingfisher flies ever on ahead of the angler, down the willow aisles, flashing as white sometimes as the mottled sycamores which stab their reflection into the dark waters. This proud-crested fellow is surely the over-lord of the stream.

Each seems to have his well-defined beat, and if one bird encroaches on the fish preserves of his neighbor upstream there is trouble at once. With a great rattling and flutter he is driven back, and as soon as he is back on his own ground he is just as quick to turn and drive out his pursuer. His nest, driven deep into the bank somewhere along his chosen domain, is a smelly place indeed with disgorged fish bones bleaching in the sun.

Painted turtles are the most common in this hill country stream. They lead a lazy life. The angler sees them basking on a foot or two of old snag just above the water. As he moves closer, casting his lure into the deeper pockets, they drop plop, plop, plop into the stream and scuttle to hiding places until he has moved on around the next bend.

The big snapper is also resident, usually in the quiet eddies where he hangs with that baleful snout just above the surface. Wanderlust strikes him occasionally, to send him adventuring across the fields. One of the biggest snappers I ever saw was lumbering along down a country roadway in the dust and heat, at least half a mile away from water. He is dangerous when pressed too closely, and should be treated with full respect for his powerful jaws.

Many Dislike Snakes

There are many folk who do not like snakes. The angle ris among this fraternity, and he belabors mightily every water snake he can get within clubbing range. Yet one of the most beautiful sights in the land below the stream bank is a mottled water snake coiled amid the curiously blotched roots of a sycamore tree above the dark water of a quiet pool. He feeds on unwary little fishes and adds a touch of serpentine mystery to the pool. Usually the angler gets just a glimpse of the dusky wriggle of his body where a sunbeam pierces the water.

Down in this enchanted land the jewel weed is almost like an orchid. The blue vervain is a veritable fairy candelabra. Sunflowers here find cool retreats which they light up with yellow effulgence. The angler becomes familiar with the blue lobelia and its gorgeous scarlet cousin. He sees the tiny jeweled flowers of the forget-me-not and the waving beds of saw grass. For a delightful sojourn into an entirely different world, just put on a pair of wading boots and step through the magic screen of willows down into the enchanted and altogether wonderful land below the stream banks.

Today's Sports Parade—

Farrell Tells of Final Playing Days

NEW YORK (UP) — Fearless Fraley's facts and figures:

Kerby Farrell, the Cleveland Indian manager, will testify willingly to the pitching speed of Rinold Duren, the San Antonio shotgun who labors in the Denver farmyard of the New York Yankees. It blew Kerby right out of the playing ranks.

Seems that in 1952, when Farrell was managing Reading in the Eastern League, his first baseman had to leave the club for a time. Kerby put it up to his players, fighting for a playoff berth, and they asked their over-40 pilot to fill in — and won six straight games.

Then came a game against Scranton, for which Duren was pitching. On the first pitch, Farrell took a whack at Duren's fast ball. The bat went one way and Farrell another.

He's Had It

Standing well back from the plate as Duren, a near-sighted speedballer with thick glasses, served up two more uncontested strikes, Kerby happily stuck his bat back in the rack and announced:

"That's it for me, fellows. As a player, I've had it."

Just in case you haven't noticed, this is National Hot Dog Month. Its popularity in sports started at New York's Polo Grounds on a cold day during World War I when a concessionaire introduced the "delicacy." The mustard came later.

More and more people are using their muscles in various U.S. recreation programs. Just as example, there are 1,754,000 boys from eight to 18 playing organized baseball this summer; 14,029 indoor recreation centers operate year-round; 7,000 industrial firms have organized employe recreation programs; 652 new 18-hole golf courses are in the planning stage, and 18,639 high schools have competitive athletic programs. Anyone for backgammon?

Another Big Year

Calumet Farm is just about ready to go over the million dollar mark in winnings for the sixth year—and is a cinch to be the nation's leading money-winning stable for the 10th time . . . which, even to the baking powder clan, is a lot of dough.

Those behind the signing of Olympic heavyweight champion Pete Rademacher to fight heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson deservedly have been taking a lashing from all sides. It doesn't seem that money could be that important as to put an untested amateur in against a savage pro . . . which makes it interesting to note that the fight is scheduled for "sick park" in Seattle.

MIZELL SPARKING CARDS

St. Louis Wins to Stay First

By FRED DOWN

Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell provided strong evidence today that he's ready to throw his weight into the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant push.

The team's No. 1 disappointment since spring training, the hard-throwing southpaw pitched the Cardinals into first place in the National League scramble Friday night when he beat the Cincinnati Redlegs, 4-3, in 11 innings. It was by far the best effort of the season for Mizell, who dropped six of his first seven decisions.

The Milwaukee Braves remained in third place when they dropped a 7-4 decision to the Chicago Cubs, the Brooklyn Dodgers downed the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-5, and the New York Giants walloped the Pittsburgh Pirates, 11-6, in the other National League games.

The New York Yankees maintained their three-game lead in the American League when they shaded the Washington Senators, 5-3, in 10 innings and the second-place Chicago White Sox drubbed the Cleveland Indians, 14-4. The Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles, 7-5, and the Detroit Tigers whipped the Kansas City Athletics, 8-5.

Mizell Fans Seven

Mizell, who beat the Redlegs five times last season when he was the Cardinals' leading winner with 14 victories, yielded nine hits and struck out seven batters in gaining his second triumph. The Cardinals scored their winning run when Ken Boyer singled to open the 11th, moved to second on Hal Smith's sacrifice and tallied on Joe Cunningham's double. Don Gross, third Cincinnati pitcher, suffered his fifth defeat.

Rookie Jerry Kendall hit his first major league homer and Don Elston won his second game as the Cubs tagged Milwaukee's Bob Buhl with his fourth loss. Hank Aaron hit his 27th homer and Johnny Logan also homered for the Braves, who have dropped four of their last five games.

Roy Campanella walloped a three-run homer off Robin Roberts in the eighth inning to help Brooklyn's Roger Craig win his third game with ninth-inning relief assistance from Johnny Podres. The loss was Roberts' 11th of the year and his fifth in a row.

Ed Bressoud, just recalled from Minneapolis, Bobby Thomson, Dusty Rhodes and Gail Harris homered as the Giants snapped a five-game losing streak with a 10-hit assault on four Pittsburgh pitchers. Johnny Antonelli went only six innings but picked up his seventh win. Frank Thomas and Bill Mazeroski homered for the Pirates.

Mantle Hits No. 1,000

The Yankees scored two runs on only one hit in the 10th to score their ninth victory in 10 games after the Senators tied the score in the bottom of the ninth. The Senators had the bases filled and one out in the ninth when Art Ditmar got Roy Sievers to hit in to an inning-ending double play. Mickey Mantle singled during the Yankees' three-run eighth inning to collect the 1,000th hit of his career.

Earl Torgeson knocked in four runs with a homer and a double and Jim Rivera drove in three runs to pace the White Sox' best offensive showing of the campaign. Jim Wilson breezed behind the assault to win his ninth game although he was tagged for nine hits including a homer by Rocky Colavito.

The Red Sox ended Billy Loes' seven-game winning streak when they staged a three-run sixth-inning rally that overcame Baltimore's 4-3 lead. Ted Williams' double climaxed the rally and helped Mike Fornieles win his fifth decision with relief aid from Ike Delock.

Jim Bunning increased his record to 10-2 although he yielded homers to Hector Lopez, Gus Zernial and Tim Thompson when the Tigers backed him with a 10-hit attack that included round-trippers by Charley Maxwell and Frank Bolling. The homer was Maxwell's 17th.

Slack Wins West Penn Net Title

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Top-seeded Ellis Slack defeated defending champion Joe Short Thursday to take his fourth West Penn men's singles tennis title, 6-4, 7-5, 6-1.

Slack, of Sewickley, Pa., met trouble only in the second set, but finally broke Short's service. He won the title in 1953, '54 and '55, but did not compete in the match last year.

Short and Jack Eaton, both of Pittsburgh, defeated Slack and Robert C. Bennett Jr. in the men's doubles, 2-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Marian Bennett and Barbara Wood won the women's doubles crown by defeating Mary Gentile and Janet Thomas, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. Mrs. Bennett won the women's singles championship last Sunday.

Musial Fourth In Extra Bases

CHICAGO (UP) — Stan Musial has passed another milestone on the road to baseball's Hall of Fame—he now stands fourth in the all-time list of extra-base hits.

Only Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig have more extra-base blows to their credit than the Cardinals' "Stan the Man." Musial passed Tris Speaker on the list Thursday when he hit a home run in the first game of a twin bill against the Cubs, the 1,133rd extra base hit of his career.

Cro-Ams Wallop MPSA, 18-4

Those talented Cro-Ams proved again last night that they are atop the City Softball League standings by merit.

Flexing their muscles, the Cro-Ams swamped MPSA, 18-4, to stay two games in front of the race.

Paul Kunsa contributed a grand-slam homer to the Cro-Ams cause while Ernie Lattanzio stroked a four-bagger with two mates aboard.

Pete Prezgar had four hits and Shoes Stancato three for the winners.

Steve Rockovich, who pitched shutout ball for five innings before easing up, held the losers to four safeties.

Ozarks Slip to Seventh in Valley League Standings

New Eagle dropped the Monessen Ozarks to seventh place in the Mon Valley League standings last night with a 10-6 decision at Ninth Street Park.

The charitable Ozarks committed seven errors to contribute greatly to their own collapse.

Manager Pappy Johnson's boys outhit the visitors, 12 to 11. Moreover four of their safeties were for extra bases. But sloppy fielding by Monessen proved the difference.

New Eagle tallied twice in the first inning on successive walks to Joe Reale and Fred Cox, followed by Lou Sepe's bouble. I nthe second, the visitors added two more runs. Gene Uhlman singled and Vic Furiga walked. An infield out advanced the runners and Cox delivered them with a single.

Score Increases

New Eagle made it 5-0 in the third when Bobby Gondos singled in Sepe who had walked and moved to second on an error.

In the fourth inning, the score increased to 7-0 as hits by Vic Furiga, Cox and John Gerlack produced two more runs.

The Ozarks made it close with a four run to outburst in their half of the inning. Ron Danko doubled and Paul Jezioro was hit by a pitched ball. Mike Young walked to load the bases.

Carl Crawley cleaned them off with a triple and Dom Duche singled in Carl.

New Eagle scored again in the fifth on an error and Furiga's double.

The Ozarks made it 8-5 in the sixth inning when Frank Valla and Fuzzy Anderson both singled in time for Mike Kunsa's double.

Score Twice

Both teams scored twice in the seventh. Furiga and Reale collected two hits to go with a couple of errors to produce the New Eagle runs after two men had been retired.

The Ozarks made a last ditch effort in the bottom of the seventh. Young singled and came home on Crawley's double. Fuzzy Anderson and Mike Kunsa both singled to bring in another run. Andy Lenio walked to load the bases but New Eagle pitcher Stan Lomago tightened at that point to avert future trouble.

Kunsa, a teen-ager making his first start for the Ozarks, came through with three hits.

Moore Scores Upset Decision

WASHINGTON (UP) — Davey Moore, who won an upset decision over Isidro Martinez in a nationally - televised fight Friday night, said today he would offer a $25,000 guarantee to Hogan Bassey to defend the world featherweight title against him.

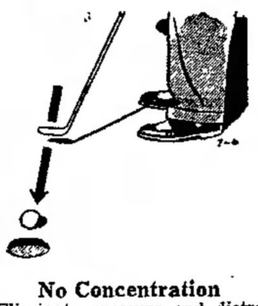
Manager Willie Ketchum said Moore, a 21-year-old from Springfield, Ohio, would meet Bassey anywhere, but prefers Madison Square Garden in New York.

Moore floored Martinez, the sixth-ranked feather by the National Boxing Assn. and an 8-5 favorite, in the seventh round, but the Panamanian arose and fought back briskly in the eighth round.

However, Moore, who had been in command in the early rounds and then lost some ground to Martinez' rally in the middle rounds, won comfortably on all cards. Judge Charley Buck and referee Eddie La Fond each scored it 95-89 for Moore, and judge Benny Alperstein made it 97-83. United Press had it 96-91 for Moore and 6-3-1 in rounds.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF



No Concentration

Eliminate pressure and distraction, and putts — two feet and less — become simple. But once you start thinking ahead to how silly you will feel, or how the match will then stand, making a short putt gets awfully tough.

The thing to do, then, is think only of the matter at hand: knocking the ball into the cup. That's what's to be done — so get on with it! Take all the time you need to line up and size up the putt — but no more. Taking extra time will only distract you.

Here is another tip: If considerable time must elapse before your turn comes to putt that short one, don't spend it lining up the putt. Wait until just before you're due to putt. Then go about your business efficiently.

Elks Assure Second Half Title in LL

The Elks are the second half champions in the National Division of the Little League.

They clinched that title yesterday by nipping the Lions, 8-7.

That means the Lions will meet CIO, first half kingpins, in a special playoff for the National crown. The series will probably begin late next week.

While the National race has now been decided, the American chase continues to be a mad scramble.

Last night, the Ravens outslugged VFW, 13-11, to drop the first half champs all the way to the cellar.

However all four teams are bunched tightly and it's anybody's race.

Ends in Tie

One other American game ended in a 4-4 tie. Park Service and Page Local were squared after three and a half innings when darkness forced suspension of play.

The Elks won their big game behind solid five hit pitching by Ed Kilpela. The winning runs came across in the final inning when Jim Frezell singled in Danny Bergstedt and Joe Koget.

George Katsuleris had two doubles for the Elks while John Katchmarik and Frank Chiprich chipped in with a pair of hits each.

In another National game, CIO blasted the Lions, 12-7, behind Buster Karenchak's two round-trippers. He also had a single.

Ralph Nuzzaci made the circuit tour, too, for the winners while Bruce Davis led Legion with a home run and double.

Kachmarik Stars

Bill Kacmarik was the star of the Ravens big win over VFW. He slammed a homer in the final inning to pull the game out for the Birds.

Earlier, Kachmarik had turned in two brilliant catches in centerfield.

John Pascarella had a double and two singles to help the winners' cause while Mike Dropp paced the Vets with two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate.

Giants Whack Pirates, 11-6, on Homer Barrage

NEW YORK (UP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates go against the New York Giants again today with Vernon Law scheduled for the pitching duties by Buc manager Bobby Bragan who has seen his team lose seven of the last eight starts.

Rookie Curt Barclay will be tossing for the Giants, who dumped the Pirates, 11-6, Friday night with a barrage of home runs. The Giants, who had scored only four runs while losing their last five games, exploded for seven in the sixth inning to break a 4-4 tie and win going away.

Ed Bressoud and pinch - hitter Bob Thomson had homers with the bases empty. Dusty Rhodes and Gail Harris also hit circuit clouts, each with a man on. Frank Thomas and Bill Mazeroski homered for the Pirates, both with the bases empty.

Johnny Antonelli was credited with his seventh victory of the year, although lifted for a pinch-hitter during the Giants' big inning. The Giants tied a National League record when three pinch-hitters came through successively in the inning.

Thomas batted in three runs with his homer, a sacrifice fly and a single.

Pirate outfielder Roberto Clemente had his tonsils removed on Friday at Presbyterian Hospital, Pittsburgh. Dr. Joseph Finegold, team physician, said it was hoped the operation would help eliminate a recurring back ailment. He said Clemente should be able to rejoin the team next week.

Locke Finishes First in British Open Tournament

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (UP) — Bobby Locke of South Africa, who won, and Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, who finished 14th, agreed today on one thing about the British Open golf championship.

Middlecoff didn't get in enough practice licks on the tough old seaside course known as the "cradle of golf."

Be-knickered Bobby, who could afford to be generous after pocketing $2,800 for his fourth British Open victory with a record-tieing 279, said he was surprised Middlecoff hadn't done better but pointed out "he simply didn't allow himself enough time to get acquainted with the course."

To that, Dr. Cary added, "Amen."

Middlecoff was 10 shots behind Locke with rounds of 72-71-74-72—289.

No Better Luck

Frank Stranahan of Toledo had no better luck than Middlecoff. His final rounds of 74-72 put him in a tie for 19th at 291.

Peter Thomson of Australia, who closed with a pair of 70s, made a game bid to retain the title he had won for three straight years but Locke beat him by a total of three shots as he closed with his 68-70.

Thomson was second with 282, worth $1,400, and Eric Brown of Scotland was third at 283. Angel Miguel of Spain finished fourth with 285 and among four tied at 286 was the leading amateur, Dick Smith of Scotland, who fell one short of Bobby Jones' amateur record for the tournament.

No-Hitter in B. Vernon Loop

The second no-hitter of the Minor League season in Belle Vernon was turned in yesterday by Jurcevich of the Lions.

He fanned seven as his Lions tripped the Bears, 10-3. It was the first win of the season for the Lions after seven straight losses.

FX-3 Root Killer Stops Clogging Of Sewer Pipes

Here is something new sold by the Monessen Hardware & Supply, 109 Sixth street, which everyone should be interested in.

It is FX-3 Root Killer which prevents clogging of sewer pipes and septic tank, cesspool drainage fields.

It prevents disease menace, prevents foul, smelly odors and combustible gases, prevents costly digging! Easy and safe to use.

The "crystalline" material contained within FX-3 Root Killer has for over 15 years proven itself to be the safest, least expensive and most practical method known for the prevention of tree roots, shrub roots, and fungus growth penetration and obstruction.

FX-3 Root Killer will destroy only the "base" of roots — only that portion that is causing clogging or partial stoppage. When it has performed its job of root destruction and clearance, FX-3 Root Killer will then seal off roots at that point so that future growth is prevented without harming the tree or shrub, or discoloring a single leaf!

FX-3 is non corrosive. . . will not affect the construction of a septic tank-cesspool nor the necessary bacteria within, and when used according to instructions, will not harm plumbing fixtures or their connecting sewer pipes. One application yearly of FX-3 Root Killer will prevent clogging for a full year or purchase price will be refunded.

Root penetration and obstruction of sewer pipes can result in the liberation of deadly and explosive gases which create hazards to health and property!

The penetration and mass accumulation of roots in the septic tank-cesspool drainage field prevents proper absorption of liquified organic matter and results in a clogged condition.

Root obstruction of the drainage field creates foul smelly odors, disease menace, and the expense of digging up and clearing the field.

Trees and shrub roots also find their source of food and liquid supply in sewer pipes connected to the main sewage trunk lines, and inlet-outlet pipes leading to and out of septic tanks and cesspools.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear daughter, sister and mother, Mrs. Margaret Konik, who died eight years ago tomorrow, July 7, 1949.
We live today with memories
Of days when you were here
We miss you still and always will
Throughout each day and year.
At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes
Our thoughts are in that lonely grave
Where our dear loved one lies.
Gone from this world so swiftly,
Plucked like a flower in bloom,
So young, so fair, so lovely,
Called away too soon.
The depth of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep
Sadly missed by Parents, Brother, Sister and Children

GOP in State Plan to Answer Leader on TV

HARRISBURG (UP)—Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom said today the GOP is arranging a statewide television hookup for July 16 to answer Gov. George M Leader's criticism of the Legislature.

Bloom said the speaker would be announced next week.

"We originally requested equal time at each of the stations which carried the governor's speech on Tuesday, but because of the intervening holiday period, the later date was settled upon," he said.

Bloom said the "vitriolic way" in which the governor attacked the Legislature and the GOP "shows he has thrown all caution to the winds." "It must now be apparent to everyone that Gov. Leader is an avowed candidate for the U.S. Senate," he added.

Blind Young Man Is Water Ski Star

By ALFRED LEECH

CHICAGO (UP) — Johnny Ross, 21, is a professional water ski star. He's also blind.

His other accomplishments include leading a dance band and wrestling on the University of Minnesota squad.

Ross, a modest young man who talks matter of factly about these activities, came to town with a water ski troupe appearing at the Chicagoland Fair.

He also is skiing this summer with Tommy Bartlett's water ski show in the Wisconsin Dells.

Few of the spectators realize Ross' handicap when they watch him skim over the water behind a speedboat.

But Major, Ross' faithful German shepherd guide dog, seems to sense the danger. Major, tied to a tree, howls mournfully when his master zooms up a ramp and soars into an 80-foot leap.

Ross was nearly married and flat broke when he went to Bartlett three years ago at the age of 18 and begged for a job.

"I would have done anything," he said.

Fixture Of Show

But Bartlett hired him as a water skier and now he's one of the show's fixtures.

Ross always skis alongside another performer, who guides him verbally.

"My partner keeps calling the distance as I near the ramp," he said. "When I'm there he hollers, 'You're on,' and the rest is up to me."

Ross never has been hurt in the hazardous stunt. But he once smashed into the opposite end of a ramp when there was no one to warn him it was there.

"I was in the hospital four months with three broken ribs, a dislocated knee and an injured shoulder," he said. "But a few days after I got out I was back in the show."

Wins College Scholarship

Ross is a junior in journalism at the University of Minnesota. He enrolled there on a wrestling scholarship after winning the Minnesota state high school title in his weight.

He's won three of five matches as a member of the university squad, but he has been hampered by two shoulder injuries.

It was at a wrestling match that he met his beautiful young wife, a nurse's aide at the university hospital.

Ross plays the drums and leads a five-piece jazz combo which plays at campus parties.

But of all his accomplishments he seems most proud of the fact that at the age of 14 he was the youngest person ever awarded a master eye dog.

"I've been blind since I was 7," he said. "The guide dog training for a person so young was an experiment.

"And since then, they've been training younger persons."

Billy Graham In Appeal to Young People

NEW YORK (UP) — Evangelist Billy Graham Friday night asked the young people of America if they were "willing to face a firing squad for Jesus" because "that's the kind of young people God is calling on today."

He said the reason Communism is spreading throughout the world is that Americans—young and old alike — do not have "spark and fire" behind their own cause.

At the close of his sermon, which he preached to an overflow crowd of 19,200 in Madison Square Garden, Graham departed from his custom of asking only for "decisions for Christ" and asked young people to come forward to make "commitments" for Christ. About 1,000 responded.

To his call for "decisions," 546 persons came forward, bringing Graham's total since his New York Crusade began 50 days ago to 27,552. An estimated 874,800 persons have attended his meetings.

The evangelist said his New York Crusade had "truly" become an American crusade, through his Saturday night television programs, carried live from the Garden on a coast-to-coast (ABC) network of 59 stations. Another of the telecasts is scheduled tonight (8-9 p.m. e.d.t.).

Congress Halts Plans To Cut Back on Soil Conservation Subsidies

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress put a stop order today in the path of administration plans to sharply cut back on soil conservation subsidies to farmers.

The administration wanted to drastically curtail the 1958 subsidies for certain conservation practices and drop others outright. That would add to the already huge stocks of government-owned surplus crops.

But Congress reacted quickly after the administration's quietly-drafted plans came to light when a secret Agriculture Department memorandum came into the hands of several congressmen this week.

A Senate-House conference committee, reporting on a compromise multi-billion dollar Agriculture Department appropriation bill, said "flood and drought conditions in much of the nation make it imperative that all 1957 (conservation) programs practices be continued."

The committee also had reached its agreement secretly a week ago. But it made the report public Friday following disclosure of the department memorandum detailing the conservation cutback.

Ordering no changes in the program next year, the committee authorized 250 million dollars for 1958 conservation measures — the same as this year's level. The bill is scheduled for floor action Tuesday.

Soviet: Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) said the Kremlin's political shakeup may result in a Soviet shift in tactics but not in long-range objectives. "It looks to me," he said, "like they've got just a different combination running things in the Kremlin." Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the purge of several top Russian leaders represents a "new Soviet challenge . . . that makes our job tougher, not easier."

Information: The House Government Information Subcommittee planned to ask Navy and Air Force information chiefs Monday if they knew of any cases where newsmen "purloined" secret information. The Army head of public information, Maj. Gen. Guy S. Meloy Jr. testified this week he never encountered any such cases. Loyd Wright, head of the controversial Commission on Government Security, alleges there were cases where newsmen wrote "dark chapters of betrayal" by publishing secrets.

Television: The Federal Communications Commission — in a memorandum directed at Congress — steadfastly maintained it has the power to authorize pay-as-you-see television on a test basis. Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark.) of the House Commerce Committee had protested the FCC's announcement May 23 that it has such authority regardless of whether it formally states its reasons. The memorandum said the commission has the power under a section of the Communications Act of 1934 to study new uses of radio and to "generally encourage the larger and more effective use of radio in the public interest."

Hells Canyon: Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) challenged President Eisenhower to make public the "full facts" about the fast tax-write-off benefits granted Idaho Power Co. to construct Hells Canyon dams. Kefauver, who heads the Senate Anti-Trust Monopoly Subcommittee investigating the case, suggested Eisenhower doesn't have all the facts concerning the write-off grant. Idaho Power since has rejected the special tax benefits.

Why the Fuss?

MILWAUKEE (UP)—John Schubert, 48, still can't figure out what everybody's so mad about. Schubert confessed Friday that he robbed the same tavern twice during the past two months. But he said he spent every cent of his loot at the tavern's bar.

Spices on an Ulcer Diet?

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Spice is the variety of life.

For years now we doctors have been telling those of you with ulcers what you should and should not eat. By and large, I am afraid, these diets have been pretty drab.

Now it looks like we have been depriving you unnecessarily of some mighty tasty concoctions.

Most ulcer diets ban spices and highly seasoned foods. Specifically, we advise patients to avoid condiments such as mustard, catchup and chili sauce and accessories like olives, pickles, etc.

Take away these items and spices, too, and what food is permitted is likely to taste pretty flat. This has caused many ulcer patients either to ignore their prescribed diets completely or to follow them with great reluctance.

Recent research, however, indicates that various spices are not harmful to ulcers and can be used in preparing foods even for those of you with active duodenal and gastric ulcers.

In an authoritative article, the American Journal of Gastroenterology reports that it is permissable to use allspeice, caraway seed, cinnamon, mace, paprika, sage and thyme in preparation of ulcer diets.

While I personally do not know anyone with ulcers who has deliberately tested this theory, the doctors who conducted the experiment went to great lengths to prove their point.

Taking these spices by themselves between meals and on an empty stomach will cause distress, of course. But eating them with food in the normal way seems to cause no discomfort. Even more important, the spices I have mentioned apparently do not alter the healing time of the ulcer craters.

Such things as black pepper, chili pepper, mustard, cloves and nutmeg still are on the "must not eat" list for all of you ulcer patients. The experimenters tried these, too, on the patients tested with the spices, but found they caused real discomfort.

Before you run out and bring home a bag full of spices, however, better check with your own physician. I have told you what researchers say you may be able to do. It's up to your own doctor to say whether you can do it.

Question and Answer

Mrs. S.D.: Does television produce eyestrain?

Answer: No, not unless it is watched for too long a period of time, or when an uncorrected eye disorder exists.

'Treasure Hunt' Will Start on TV Aug. 12

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—The channel swim.

Jan Murray's "Treasure Hunt" will take over half the time slot of the Arlene Francis "Home" show on NBC-TV starting Aug. 12. "Treasure Hunt" is the sixth ABC-TV program to drift recently into the NBC-TV camp. The others are "Dollar A Second," "Masquerade Party," "Amateur Hour," "The Vise" and next season's "Omnibus."

CBS-TV is pitching a new type of dramatic series at Ralph Bellamy—one concerned with the problems of a business man. Robert Strom, the youngster who copped $192,000 on "The $64,000 Question," had his monthly allowance raised from $2.50 to $3.50.

NBC-TV is mulling over a Saturday evening show for next fall that would combine the talents of Peggy Lee and Dean Martin—it would follow the Perry Como hour. Mike Wallace has landed Texas businessman Glenn McCarthy for one of his upcoming ABC-TV interview shows.

Andre Baruch, the announcer who checked out of "Your Hit Parade," is cooking up a TV program, "Double Exposure," that would center around ordinary citizens who look like celebrities. Tommy Leonetti, the singer who'll check into "Your Hit Parade" next fall, has enrolled at June Taylor's dance school for footwork lessons.

Hildegarde plans to film a variety TV series, "The International Show," abroad — Paris, Copenhagen, Madrid, Rome, Buenos Aires and Tokyo are among her initial stops. Kaiser Aluminum will present a 60-minute saddle soap opera, "Maverick," on ABC-TV next season on Sunday nights. The company has scotched plans to slot first run films opposite CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan and NBC-TV's Steve Allen.

Strip Lighting Can Create Nice Effects

Just about any room in your home can take on new decorative and illuminating dimensions through imaginative use of strip lighting.

Strip lighting is created with fluorescent tube lamps covered with baffles in the nature of valances, cornices and the like. Tube lamps can be ranged end to end to make whatever length of lighting fixture is desired.

Baffle structures can be made and outfitted by the home handyman. The lighting strips can be designed for general illumination, direct illumination, or both. Besides improving lighting they can afford such decorative effects as dramatic contrast of light and shadow, seeming enlargement of a room, or emphasis of pattern or texture of room features.

A favorable location for lighting strips is valances over windows, duplicating the source of natural daytime light. Lighted valances can also show the pattern of drapes. The lighting tubes should be mounted far enough out from the wall so that the drapery does not block downward light.

Lighting strips can also be installed on wall areas. If the light casts both up to the ceiling and down on the walls, the room seems bigger and light is brighter.

While the living room or den might come to mind first in plans for strip lighting, there are other spots where it can be effective. A strip above the head of the bed, fo example, can serve both for reading and general light. Strips under cabinets and shelves can provide direct illumination for kitchen and laundry work.

Cutting Board Handy to the Sewing Hobbyist

For the woman who is a sewing enthusiast, a large, smooth-surfaced cutting board is a handy piece of equipment.

A good-looking and functional cutting board can be fashioned by bonding a piece of predecorated hardboard to a sheet of plain hardboard. The predecorated paneling's baked plastic finish is easy to keep clean and it cannot snag threads. Pastel colors available, such as a green, are restful to the eyes.

To make it really worthwhile, the cutting board should be of a size that the biggest piece of a pattern can be spread out on it.

The cutting board might be hinged to a wall so that it swings down to rest on a table or other solid base when needed. Or it might be hinged to a table in the manner of a drop leaf. Or it can be portable.

Afternoon Project

It takes about four hours to replace the average wood hatchway which covers the outside basement stairs with a modern, all-steel unit.

Paint Over Brick

Although brick often is used for exterior house walls because it calls for a minimum of upkeep, tests have shown that when such walls are painted they actually become less humid in summer as well as being sealed against moisture absorption and seepage.

Older Bathroom Can Be Improved Easily

An older bathroom may not need a major overhaul in order to acquire a trim, modern appearance.

A stunning transformation can take place just by installation of a lavatory vanity like those that capture one's fancy in public showings of model homes.

The lavatory vanity, consisting of a flat-rim wash bowl fitted into the top of a built-in cabinet, presents advantages both in what it does and how it looks.

The wash bowl is surrounded by ample counter surface, where one can safely and conveniently set bottles and jars of toiletries, brushes, hairpins and sundry other grooming items.

Since no home seems to have an excess of storage, the cabinet space underneath is a welcome repository for bathroom supplies or linens. At the same time, the cabinet improves the bathroom appearance by enclosing the lavatory's water and drain pipes.

Starting with the purchase of a new-style flat-rim lavatory, a modern lavatory vanity can be custom-built according to individual requirements. The project can be reduced to terms of making a framework and enclosing it with panels.

A counter surface that will withstand water, wear and spilled cosmetics is a prime consideration.

For lasting beauty and easy upkeep, the sides and doors of the cabinet as well as a back splash panel on the wall may be surfaced with the same predecorated hardboard, perhaps in a pattern or color different from the top.

Sliding doors, too, are easy to install and will not get in the way, as swinging doors can, in limited bathroom quarters.

'Low Voltage' Electric Wiring Systems Popular

"Low voltage" electric wiring systems are being used by more and more builders of new homes throughout the country because they make it possible to turn lights off from many different parts of the room or house, says the book, "How to Build and Contract Your Own Home."

The book, written by Larry Eisinger, explains that the lamps themselves use regular 110-115 volts but the on-and-off switching is done by a solenoid that operates on low voltage, usually 24 volts, which in turn makes it possible to run many small plastic-covered wires from one switch point to another.

For the average size home this method of wiring will cost slightly more than the conventional systems, but in larger homes it will prove more economical on a per outlet basis if any elaborate two, three, four and five way switching is desired, the book says.

Modern Trends Are Needed in Homes

When buying a new house, try to keep in step with modern trends so that it will be up to date ten or more years from now.

Features which should be included are two bathrooms; oversized garage or carport for new, large cars; a well-lighted basement with a separate outside entrance to make it suitable for family fun rooms; and adequate electrical wiring for future appliances and workshop tools.

Within the past few years, there has been a steady rise in the number of homes built with these features. The trend is expected to continue.

Enamel for Hatchway

Your steel basement hatchway should be painted with auto enamel.
